Information

To protect everyone's health and well-being the summer school 2020 will be primarily carried out through digital means. We will use several online media channels that allow us to create the space for an interactive as well as inclusive exchange between all participants (Zoom, Miro...). These methods will include small group discussions as well as input provided by our guests. Through creating a format that combines multifaceted contributions by all attendees while leaving space for in-depth conversations and reflections we seek to foster an inspiring exchange of perspectives on the power of narratives in our lives and beyond.

→ There will be a mandatory Online-Meeting before the Summer School for all participants on 9. September, 19-20:30.

"Many stories matter. Stories have been used to dispossess and to malign. But stories can also be used to empower, and to humanize. Stories can break the dignity of a people. But stories can also repair that broken dignity."
